Liontrust appoints Head of Institutional Business

Liontrust, the specialist independent fund management group, has recruited Frank Doyle for the new position of Head of Institutional Business.

Frank Doyle, who is joining Liontrust in September and has more than 30 years of experience, will be responsible for expanding and enhancing the company's institutional business.

Frank Doyle has been Sales Director at Investec Asset Management for the past 12 years, where he was responsible for developing and implementing global consultant plans along with the UK and Irish institutional business.

Prior to Investec, Frank Doyle was Head of UK and Ireland Institutional Sales at Citigroup Asset Management, Head of Global Consultant Relations at Dresdner RCM Global Investors and Head of UK Institutional Sales at M&G Investment Management.

John Ions, Chief Executive of Liontrust, said: "Frank is a key appointment in the continued growth of Liontrust. The commitment to active management and the emphasis on robust investment processes has been one of the driving success factors of the group. Frank's appointment will help us further develop the institutional demand we are already seeing, coupled with the broadening of our investment capabilities."

Frank Doyle said: "I am joining Liontrust at a very exciting time. The growth of the business demonstrates that it has a compelling investment proposition. The opportunity to build on the progress it has made in the institutional space is one that I look forward to with enthusiasm and confidence."
